Glencore Queensland operations - Cyclone Debbie update

Glencore's North Queensland operations have withstood the impact of Cyclone Debbie.

All our people are safe and there has been no damage to our mine infrastructure.

Production remains suspended at our Collinsville and Newlands coal mines and we are undertaking water management activities in accordance with our approvals.

Both mines plan to return to production over the next 48 hours and we do not envisage any impact on our annual production forecasts.

It currently remains business as usual at our Oaky Creek, Clermont and Rolleston coal mines, our Mount Isa copper and zinc operations and our Ernest Henry Mining copper complex.

Operations at our Townsville Copper Refinery have also restarted today.

We are continuing to receive regular updates from the various port and rail operators.

About Glencore

Glencore is one of the world's largest global diversified natural resource companies and a major producer and marketer of more than 90 commodities. The Group's operations comprise around 150 mining and metallurgical sites, oil production assets and agricultural facilities.

With a strong footprint in both established and emerging regions for natural resources, Glencore's industrial and marketing activities are supported by a global network of more than 90 offices located in over 50 countries.

Glencore's customers are industrial consumers, such as those in the automotive, steel, power generation, oil and food processing. We also provide financing, logistics and other services to producers and consumers of commodities. Glencore's companies employ around 160,000 people, including contractors.

Glencore is proud to be a member of the Voluntary Principles on Security and Human Rights and the International Council on Mining and Metals. We are an active participant in the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative.

Glencore in Australia

Glencore has operated in Australia for nearly 20 years and holds significant interests in a range of commodity industries across all mainland states and the Northern Territory.

Headquartered in Sydney, Glencore is a major Australian employer, with about 15,600 people working across industries that include coal, copper, zinc, nickel, oil and agricultural products.

During 2016 in Australia, Glencore contributed more than $12 billion to the regional, state and national economies. The most significant economic contribution came from core business activities: employing people, sourcing from local communities, and paying taxes to host governments.
