

Glencore has held a mineral development licence over the Aurukun bauxite resource since January 2018. The resource is located in western Cape York, 40km north of Aurukun. The Traditional Owners of the land are the Wik Waya People

OUR WORK PROGRAM

A mineral development licence allows the holder to undertake the technical and environmental studies required to determine if it is viable to build a mine.

Over the past two years Glencore has progressed its assessment of the resource including:

- o Completing comprehensive environmental baseline surveys
- o Undertaking a geological resource validation drilling program
- o Establishing a Project Working Group with Traditional Owners and Ngan Aak-Kunch as part of an agreement making process
- o Performing mine planning and engineering work to define the potential Project scope and design
